Gruff Old Dad! Surely, he doesn't want a day to honor him! Ask for an x-ray picture of his heart, and you will know better. He may be tanned of face and rough of hand, but his big heart is Very tender. Yes, let's observe Father's Day. Let us keep it with enthusiasm! He will appreciate it all the more because we have neglected him so long. What strange and wonderful people these Fathers are! They may look old, but on the inside they are still boys. They are ready for the pleasures of their childhood. Surprise them and you will catch them when the guards of age and dignity are down. They will be easy victims of love's attack. Give them a whole big day when they receive... instead of give.

Wise and appreciative women and men could find no better word for their Divine Creator, than this name, "Father." He is more like God than any other. Treat him that way for one day. "Father's Day," and gladden his heart for all the days to come. Yes, give him one whole big day. It is Father's Day.

Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the CHURCH. Be Faithful! Be a Churchman.

The meeting of the Western ministers with Molotov, scheduled concurrently with the United Nations' lith anniversary celebration, is to make final arrangements for the Geneva session among President Eisenhower, British Prime Minister Anthony Eden, French Premier Edgar Faure, and Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin.

But the most important development of their two-day session was the disclosure to them by Adenauer of a set of terms for the trade and diplomatic talks with West Germany proposed by the Kremlin that his trip to Moscow ing under a state of siege — a may never be made. Alex. H. Washburn , Washburn came to Arkansas April 26, 1923, as news editor He started as a cub reporter on the Wilkes-Barre morning Record during school vacation periods after the war. In Eldorado he advanced from news editor to associate editor, and finally editor.

His acquaintance with Mr. Palmer began in 1928 when the latter bought out the original stock holdings in the News-Times Publishing Co. and asked Mr. Washburn to remain as editor.

The following year they formed Star Publishing Co. and acquired the old evening Star of Hope and the morning Daily News and consolidated them as Hope Star, six-day evening edition.

Mr. Washburn negotiated in May 1932 the purchase from Talbot Feild, Sr., and the First National Bank of the original newspaper building at 212-14 S. Walnut st. in behalf of Star Publishing Co. — and it was this building which was torn down beginning February 28, 1955, to make way for today's modern newspaper structure. editor, and finally editor.

Clyde E. Palmer Nir. Palicer came to this section August 4, 1909, as manager of the old Texarkana Courier, purchasing it in 1911. Later its name was changed to Four States Press, and today it is the Texarkana Gazette. Gazette.

Mr. Palmer was born at Spirit Lake, Iowa, August 24, 1876, the son of Eber and Lydia Denny Palmer. His father had settled there in 1863 soon after an Indian massacre, and for many years was postmaster. Mr. Palmer started his business career as cashler for the Security Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Proceedings. After the war he joined the passenger department of the Burlington railroad at Chicago, held a similar job with the Cotton Belt in Texas, and finally became credit manager of the Washer Brothers Department Store in Fort Worth — and it was this posituation he left, to enter the newspaper business at Texarkana and begin a publishing career which has made him nationally known.
